

VALLEE BLANCHE SKIING

VALLÉE BLANCHE

Superb ski descent on the longest glacier on the Mont-Blanc range, of around 24 km. Deep in the heart of high mountains, blue crevasses, ice falls and dramatic scenery, a run down the Vallée Blanche is surely one of nature's finest gifts. Accompanied by a guide, you can negotiate, in complete security the impressive breath-taking ridge from the Aiguille du Midi to where the skiing starts. From the summit of the cable car (3842m), you will ski 2900 m of vertical drop until Chamonix.

Many different routes down can be chosen according to the groups ability (Envers du Plan, Grand Envers du Plan, Rognon glacier ...) and you will choice at the last moment with your mountain guide, according to you ski level and the snow conditions.

The skiing : The Vallée Blanche is entirely off-piste, unmarked and not patrolled by a rescue team. The weather alone determines snow conditions. Plan on spending 4/5 hours depending upon conditions, route chosen and group level.

Ski level : Open to all abilities because they are different routes possible. Though note well ; the most important thing is to have control over your skiing no matter what your personal ability. A well behaved snowplough is preferable to an out of control parallel turn !

Périod : From Christmas to beginning of may, depending of snow and glacier conditions

Saison: from January to April

Prix: starting at 350 €

Durée: 1 day

Taille du groupe: 4/6 pax
